The future

Who knows what the future will bring. One thing is certain however, if you don't pay attention to changes in your market place you will not survive in business. We are committed to supplying clients with packages that will cope with future demands. Keeping up-to-date with technology developments is key to understanding the best components that will build your Audio 7 Media System.

“Everything that was promised was delivered when expected... the end result being a system that far exceeds my initial expectations and within the agreed budget!”

Mr. J. Pitman. New build project.

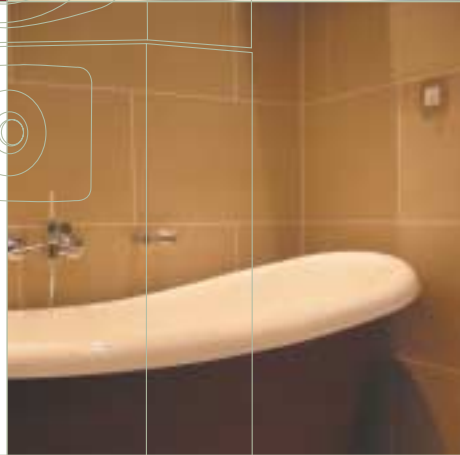

“Outstanding service. I look forward to working with you again on my next project.”

Hanover Build.

AUDIO7 is committed to providing you with the best advice and service on all your media entertainment and integration requirements. We take time to understand a client's requirements and offer impartial, truly independent advice on what will deliver those requirements both in the domestic environment and commercial projects. Every project gets allocated a dedicated Project Manger to liaise between client, architect, and tradesmen throughout the duration to make the process as simple as possible

Domestic

Multi room distribution (whole house audio) and media integration at home is where hi-fi and home theatre entertainment is heading. A single source with multiple interaction points throughout your home, allowing you to choose what music you listen to, in which room, or the ability to view a film anywhere in the house.

Audio 7 can provide you with the flexibility and adaptability demanded of today's fluid lifestyle. We are partners only with those manufacturers that we believe hold the same values for product quality and design as we do, and who support our dedication to exceed your expectations for sales, service and advice.

Commercial

In the commercial world presentation is vital. Integration of media technology is a powerful tool in business communication. Audio 7 have the expertise to advise and implement hi-spec systems that will not only display images or distribute sound, but create the best environment to enjoy your media presentation or conference.

Our clients choose us because we are not just a supplier and installer of systems, we also train and support you after the installation and hand-over. Your project manager will ensure that you are kept informed of the project's progress and deal with any concerns you may have from the very initial meeting through the life of the project and beyond. We believe in building partnerships that will help you get the most from your system.
